The Cost Of 'Dropping Out'

For the individual youngster, dropping out of school inevitably means a lifetime of lost opportunities. But the effects are visited not just on the individual but on all of us, for society as a whole must "pay the bill" for the undereducation of a significant segment of its population. And a new study by a professor at Stanford University indicates that "bill" is a staggering one indeed.

Using census data, Prof. Henry M. Levin determined that there are 3.2 million men, ages 25 through 34, who did not graduate from high school. Using standard figures, he projected these men will over their lifetimes lose an estimated $237 billion in potential income because they dropped out of school.

While it would have cost an estimated $40 billion to provide high school completion for the group, Prof. Levin says his estimates show the men would have paid $70 billion in taxes on their lost income, meaning a net "loss" of $30 billion in potential tax revenues. Moreover, this doesn't take into account what the nation's various governmental units would have saved in welfare payments to this same group, many members of which crowd the welfare rolls.

Is this a "bill" we can continue to afford to pay? We think not. —Huntington (W. Va.) Herald-Dispatch and Advertiser

Ultimate Sacrifice

Suggestions for pollution control reached the living end, literally, but we trust facetiously, at a recent White House seminar on pollution.

Judd H. Alexander, vice president of American Can, startled the group with this observation: "Any one of us could help reduce pollution if we would just drop dead. We would then no longer be consumers of valuable oxygen; we would no longer expel unwanted carbon dioxide, and our bodies would soon be supplying essential nutrients to the soil."

"I know this to be true, but somehow I just cannot bring myself to make the sacrifice. This is the dilemma in which many business organizations find themselves today. Try as we will, we are going to do some harm to this world, and we must be sure to balance that harm with positive contributions to the quality of life." —Columbia (S.C.) State

To Be Alive

Once Dr. Albert Einstein wrote: "The most beautiful thing we can experience is the mysterious. It is the source of all art and science. He to whom this emotion is a stranger, who can no longer pause to wonder and stand in rapt awe, is as good as dead; his eyes are closed."

A little while ago it was winter grey; now it is spring green. Mysterious life forces worked silently in limb and bud to re-create. Some call it art and science. Some call it God. But by whatever name, no one really alive can ponder it without a profound experience of mystery. And that said Einstein, is a "beautiful thing." —Florence (S.C.) Morning News

WANTED:
Buyer for $1 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wanted—a buyer for $1 billion in ground money. Cheap—starts at $10 per ton.

If the federal government could advertise a product it is having a hard time getting rid of—worn-out U.S. currency—that's probably the way it would read.

Federal reserve banks are beginning to grind up cash instead of burning it, because many localities have antiburning laws to protect the environment. Treasury officials say grinding eventually will be the only way they will dispose of old dollars.

But what to do with the end product—a fine, light green fluff, has presented problems, and the Treasury Department is trying to sell it.

So far, only one company, a Kansas well-drilling outfit, has been interested in buying the lint-like chopped cash.

The David Mud and Chemical Co., Treasury officials say, is buying ground-up dollars from the Dollar Federal Reserve Bank for $10 a ton and using it as well-drilling mud. The ground-up money, turned into a thick slush, is used in the boring process.

The Treasury says it is also investigating selling the former greenbacks to a roofing company for use as roofing felt, but no deal has been worked out.

The only problem is there aren't many commercial uses for worn-out money.

The government destroys about 2,500 tons of currency a year, about two billion notes with a face value of $12 billion.

Treasury officials say they would like to make old dollars into stationary, but it is out of the question because of Secret Service regulations. Someone might get the idea that they can use the paper for counterfeiting.

"It still has the distinctive fabrics that could cause problems to secret service in its counterfeiting operations," said O. H. Tomkinson, the department's management analysis officer.

Another problem is that it costs too much to get the ink out, so that any end product made from dollars is going to be money-green.

The Dallas Federal Reserve Bank is the only one doing the grinding now, but this summer banks at Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Minneapolis will begin shifting from burning to grinding.

Tomkinson figures the government will grind up about $1 billion worth of cash this year.

George McGovern
aides claiming
1,360 delegates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of George McGovern claim the South Dakota senator will have at least 1,360 delegate votes by the time of the Democratic party convention in Miami Beach next month.

That would be 149 short of the 1,509 needed to clinch the party nomination for president. McGovern now has 957.55 committed delegate votes and is after the 278 votes at stake in the New York State primary on June 20.

McGovern's total is greater than all of his major rivals put together. Sen. Hubert Humphrey has 349.6, Gov. George Wallace has 328, and Sen. Edmund Muskie has 178.05 for a total of 855.65. Another 127.5 are committed to other candidates and favorite sons.

There are 521.3 uncommitted delegate votes to date, and McGovern will be trying to woo support from this group, as well as from about 350 delegates remaining to be selected in state conventions. The National Democratic Convention will open July 10.

Is Ted Kennedy in or out?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy never has been in the race for a spot on the Democratic presidential ticket this year, but neither is he wholly out of it.

Kennedy's standing with the party and his future as a national contender are at stake every time he's asked whether he would accept the nomination for president or vice president.

Perhaps that explains why he ever seems to fully answer the question.

On Tuesday, the Boston Globe quoted the Massachusetts senator as saying he would "not exclude the possibility" of accepting the vice presidential nomination on a ticket headed by Sen. George S. McGovern if that seems to be the only winning combination.

On Wednesday, Kennedy added, "But I don't believe that's a reasonable situation or a foreseeable one. I can't foresee any circumstances under which I might accept."

A Kennedy aide said privately, "You could postulate some considerations under which he might do it and you're bound to arrive at one to which he would have to say 'Yes.' He also has said that he might run for president if it looked like George Wallace was going to get the nomination."

"But that's not the same as saying he's running, or even interested," the aide said.

The remote possibility that Kennedy might consider a vice presidential invitation on a ticket with McGovern seemed significant in that it came at the time of a struggling "stop McGovern" movement within the Democratic party.

Last Sunday Rep. Wilbur Mills, himself an announced presidential candidate, predicted McGovern would fail to win the nomination and the convention was likely to turn to Kennedy instead.

Mills said he might even be willing to accept a vice presidential nomination on a Kennedy ticket. Kennedy said he was "flattered" but still wasn't running.

Kennedy probably has it within his power to stop this move against McGovern, but he seriously questions whether it is necessary. And running for vice president would hardly be the way.

"What 'stop McGovern' movement?" one Kennedy staff member asked. "You hear a lot about it, but I don't see it. It's a movement without a leader."

FOOTPRINTS

By GEORGE SMITH

Ashes to ashes. Dust to dust. The criminal always returns to the scene of the crime. Birds of a feather . . . etc.

Somewhere in the above fits the circumstances of my return to Hope after a 19-year absence.

I was born in the Julia Chester Hospital (now the Hope Nursing Home) on South Main on a hot Saturday in June 1945. I have lived in Hope various times since then, leaving for good in January 1953 to take up residence in Avery, Tex., a small tomato-growing community some 80-odd miles west of here. Our last residence in Hope was 1102 South Main, just kitty-corner from the old JC hospital. Saturday I unloaded a packed U-Haul in a house here—on South Main, 1103 to be precise.

What this all boils down to is that I'm back in my hometown, among friends and scads of relatives and near-relatives and relatives who won't accept kin and I'm proud to be here.

It is unusual, I think, in this day when communication via satellite is an everyday occurrence, but when person-to-person communication is a rarity, that so many Hopeites "Should that be Hopeans?" took time out to drop the South Main a note of welcome.

The effort and the thought is appreciated.

As a further way of introduction, I am, practically and every Waddell, Sutton, Andres and any other person whose last name begins with either B, F, G, M or N and lives within a 100-mile radius.

My wife's name is Janet and she's a Texan, but I don't hold that against her. We have two children, Jason and Marjorie, and both are mean and stomp and spit when they get mad and take after their mother. In addition, we have a registered wirehair named Dilly (actually Maredale of Monkey Run, according to the AKC records) that I picked up on the short end of a swap involving a used air conditioner and a busted pogo stick.

My wife makes terrible coffee but passable pie, so just drop by the house sometime, coffee in hand, and we'll sit and lie to each other and get acquainted.

I grew up on my grandfather's truck farm in the Sutton community and was forced-teaching helpings of Our Daily Bread, Sliced Thin by the Editor.

My grandfather, George L. Andres, did and does, put great store in the wordy wisdoms penned daily by Alex Washburn, and he used to read the column nightly to as many of his grandchildren as he could round up before supper.

My column falls in a different category. It is usually acceptable at only two places: a combination all-day wagon wash and hug killin' and a trip to the Sutton House.

This column is a spinoff from Ozarks Footprints which I wrote for more than four years for the Baxter Bulletin in Mountain Home, a strictly literary outlet of words and sayings thrown together without regard to social, political or economic relevance.

It will appear in each Saturday's edition of the Star, hopefully, and should never be taken seriously unless I start it off with the phrase "Seriously. . ."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"You Dirty Crook."

Baseball umpires and football referees take it in stride. But there are times when the cry "You dirty crook" or words to that effect can amount to slander. How the courts look upon such outbursts tells a great deal about the law of defamation of character.

Take this case. During an argument at a golf course, one player called another "a lousy crook." The latter filed suit for slander, charging that the epithet had branded him as a common criminal.

But the court disagreed. At least in this situation, said the court, the words were no more than generalized bluster.

Oliver Wendell Holmes once expressed the law's attitude as follows:

"A word is not a crystal, transparent and unchanged; it is the skin of a living thought, and may vary greatly in color and content according to the circumstances and the time in which it is used."

Accordingly, another court found it was indeed defamatory for a jeweller to say of a rival jeweller that he was "a crook mixed up in some crooked deals."

This time the comment, made during a business conference, was clearly meant to be taken literally.

Even in a non-business setting, this kind of language may be defamatory. At a club meeting, one of the members denounced the club president as "a cheat and a fraud." In short order, the president filed suit for slander.

In a court hearing he pointed out that the remark had been made not merely as a general insult but as a specific comment on his performance in office. The court decided that, since the office was one of trust and honor, the words were weighty enough to support a suit.

"Those words," said the judge, "cannot but impair confidence in (the president's) ability to hold the office."

WORLD OF WORK

G. H. of Rockford, Ill., writes: Is there any rule against loud radio playing in a plant?

Dear G. H.: There are no restrictions under relevant federal law, the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, on radio playing. However, standards on occupational noise exposure limit sound levels to 90 decibels when exposure is continuous over an eight-hour day. This standard might apply to a very loud radio.

B. K., St. Louis, Mo., asks: If a firm deliberately violates the equal pay law, what can employees do about it?

Dear B. K.: Fortunately, the Department of Labor Wage and Hour Division is able to persuade most employers to comply with the law by educating them about its requirements. However, lawsuits are filed where necessary. The secretary of Labor may obtain an injunction against the employer to restrain further violation and require back wages to be paid, or he may bring suit for payment of back wages upon written request of the underpaid employee. Further, employees may file their own suits for unpaid wages, an additional but equal amount as damage, plus lawyer's fees and court costs if the employer has not been paid back wages under the secretary's supervision, and the secretary has not already filed suit for the back wages. Since the Equal Pay Act went into effect in 1964, nearly 250 court cases have been filed and back wages totaling more than $10 million have been recovered through litigation and out of court settlements. Most of the affected employees also have received pay increases as a result.

L. L., of Petaluma, Calif., writes: I employ 15 Spanish-speaking persons. Is there available an approved Spanish version of a poster on employee rights that will satisfy posting requirements?

Dear L. L.: Yes. Copies of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration poster in Spanish may be obtained from Regional Offices of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in San Francisco, Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas and Kansas City, Mo.

P. T. of Cleveland, Ohio, writes: I am a federal employee and belong to a union. How can I see the financial records of my union?

Dear P. T.: The union is required under Executive Order 11491, as amended, to file an annual financial report with the Labor Department. These are available to the public in 24 area offices and in Washington. See your phone book for complete address.

PERSONAL FINANCE

If titles sell books, this one ought to sell a million. It offers instructions on (and is entitled) "Shaking the Money Tree." Who wouldn't want to know how?

Its subtitle is "How to Find New Growth Opportunities in Common Stocks," and that, alas! isn't quite as easy as driving out into the country and finding an apple tree that's ripe for shaking. The authors (there are two of them), are early enough involved in explaining away the difficulties. For they are hard-headed, long-experienced, top-level professionals in the market, who know there is no easy road to riches, there or elsewhere.

This may be one of the more realistic investment-advice books to appear recently, in fact, abstaining as it does from razz-ma-tazz formulas for doubling your money overnight.

"Today, we believe you should aim for a total annual return of 10 to 12 per cent from your common stock investments."

This is the modest goal regarded as realistic by authors Winthrop Knowlton and John L. Furth. And who are they, to disillusion us about returns of 40, 60 or 100 per cent a year?

Well, Knowlton was for 10 years a general partner, in charge of research, in one of Wall Street's more quietly prestigious firms, White, Weld & Co. Next he was assistant secretary of the Treasury for international affairs. Now he's president of Harper & Row which, not surprisingly, is the publisher of "Shaking the Money Tree."

Furth was a general partner in a major brokerage firm, Burnham & Co., and is now executive vice-president of E. M. Warburg, Pincus & Co., investment advisers. Collectively, the two authors bring 27 years of Wall Street experience to the job.

They take a conservative approach to investment. They have only a few disdainful words for the "chartists," who try to predict market movements and stock prices with graphs. Their "money tree" is a carefully selected, successful company, solid on fundamentals—"the kind of money tree you can hold and shake for a decade or more."

They frankly divide all companies into "good guys" and "bad guys." Any company is either successful, or it's a "problem company"—and most companies are the latter. The minority of solidly successful companies can be identified by their five characteristics:

- Management's "ability to respond to change is the critical feature." The company doesn't just drift along, but "is in control of its own destiny," adapting to change and taking advantage of it.

- The company is characterized by innovation and creativity. A chief asset is "the power of surprise" in creating new products or services that capture a market.

- The company has a solidly entrenched, commanding position in the marketplace. It's not easy for competitors to dislodge them, or make them move over.

- There is financial discipline, firm control over costs, an avoidance of spendthrift behavior, a habit of keeping money in its pockets.

- There is a record of consistent, year-to-year growth, not in sporadic spurts, but a planned, driving upward thrust.

Do your homework, find a company that answers to these criteria of success, and you have your "money tree." It's not a method for getting rich overnight, but you can shake it. The authors say, for 10 to 12 per cent a year, and sleep well at night.

A put-up job, of course, but this young lady dressing up out of a prop theater trunk dramatically demonstrates the new light feel of the old heavy heel

Is her blood pressure normal?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—My younger sister on the West Coast had a blood pressure of 134 over 84. Her doctor said the maximum was 130 over 80 and if she didn't get immediate treatment she would die. She convinced me to get a check-up and my blood pressure was 136 over 86. My doctor said it was fine, that the maximum was 140 over 90, but it tended to creep up in a person my age. He said I shouldn't gain weight and if the pressure got higher we would have to start treating it. Any opinions or comments, please?

Dear Reader—The official opinion of the American Heart Assn. and the American Medical Assn. is that a blood pressure of 140 over 90 or below is normal. I can add to this from personal experience that there are a large number of healthy, young Air Force pilots with blood pressures higher than 130 over 80 who are flying aircraft today and a few astronauts. I am unaware of any qualified heart specialist who feels that 130 over 80 is abnormal.

Blood pressure varies from time to time. It can be sharply elevated during the anxiety of a medical examination, only to subside to much lower limits immediately thereafter. For this reason, most doctors will prefer to have more than one blood pressure reading in a variety of settings before deciding what its significance really is. Now, it is true that the higher the blood pressure the greater the increased likelihood of eventually having a heart attack. Thus, individuals who have blood pressure on the low side as a group are probably better off. It is also true that one of the most effective ways of preventing high blood pressure or its initial treatment in individuals who have mild elevation of blood pressure is weight loss. Many individuals after a significant loss of excess fat develop relatively normal blood pressure, even though they might have had quite significant elevations before that.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I used to exercise 15 to 20 minutes right before going to bed each night because I fell asleep faster, felt better in the morning and seem to have had more energy and be more alert the next day. Then I read somewhere that exercise at that time is not good for you, so I quit altogether. (Other times are not as convenient.) I have decided to get a medical opinion. Do you think exercise at night before going to bed is harmful? I am a 17-year-old girl?

Dear Reader—Of course not. Some people do not like to exercise at that time because it energizes them and they feel awake when they would like to feel drowsy and go to sleep. That apparently was not your problem. Other individuals who eat large, heavy meals, particularly those who have preceded their meals with a couple of cocktails, seldom want to exercise at that time.

It is true that individuals who have health problems, particularly heart disease, are better off to do whatever exercise they are able to do before meals rather than after meals. Otherwise, there should be no reason why a person could not do his exercises just before going to bed. Each person often develops his own routine and the most important thing about exercise is to follow a proper program, which means enough, but not too much, and do it regularly.

The return of the wedgie

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Revival of the hit Broadway shows of the 1920s "No, No, Nanette" and "Follies" has ushered in the clothing and heavy-look shoe fashions of that nostalgic era.

Thick wedgies of the "Roaring Twenties" and the bulky platform offshoot of the 1940s are making their return debuts this spring.

Some intricate defense

By Oswald &amp; James Jacoby

A reader from Winnipeg asks, "How bad was my five-diamond bid? My partner thinks I should have either passed or doubled four hearts. I was set one because West opened his singleton club and then undered his ace of hearts when I led a spade after playing two rounds of trumps."

Our reply was that we didn't consider it a bad bid because we would have made it ourselves. It took superb defense to defeat our core-spondent one trick at the five-diamond contract and it would have taken even better defense for North and South to defeat four hearts.

The only successful defense must start with the king of clubs; diamond to the ace, second club by North. Or diamond to the ace; club led by North; second club led by whoever wins the first club.

The defense forces dummy immediately. Now if East plays two rounds of trumps; leads the nine of spades and lets it ride North will lead a third round of clubs. This will force West's last trump and East will have no parking place for his last club.

Suppose East doesn't play two rounds of trumps. He can ruff a diamond; ruff a club; ruff the last diamond, ruff the last club; cash West's ace of trumps, play ace and another spade. North will proceed to lead a third spade and South's queen of hearts will score.

Against any other defense East will be able to play two rounds of trumps and set up either the queen or 10 of spades for a discard of the one club he won't be able to ruff.

THE GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

A Break from the Traditional

DEAR RAP: Is this something new?

In one of the several graduation announcements we received this year, a picture of the graduate was enclosed, rather than the traditional "calling card."

What do you think about this breakaway from past custom? (If one of you likes it and the other doesn't we'll still be undecided, eh?)—CORRECT OR INCORRECT?

DEAR C O R I:

You lucked out: We BOTH vote for pictures to replace the traditional calling cards in graduation announcements, though whether this is "correct" according to etiquette rules, we don't know.

A photograph (we cotton to the casual, sort of unposed kind) is much more personal, and not any more expensive than a printed name card which people look at once and throw away.—HELEN AND SUE

DEAR SUE AND HELEN: I have hated my father ever since I can remember, and now I'm 16 and taking out my hate on every guy that likes me.

There's one boy in particular. I love Paul very much but in a wild fit of temper over almost nothing, I pulled a knife on him and then slammed the door in his face.

I've apologized, but I don't blame him if he never forgives me. Don't say I need a psychiatrist. All I need is Paul's love to cure me. Help me convince him.—REALLY SORRY OVER HURTING HIM

DEAR RSOHH:

If not a psychiatrist, at least you need some counseling—and not from Paul who doesn't have the training to find out your real hang-ups. Love can't cure everything. Next time, the "hurt" you hand him might be physical.—SUE

DEAR SORRY: You didn't say why you hate your father. But if this hate makes you threaten a boy with a knife, you need professional help! One or two sessions with a trained counselor might stop those "wild fits of temper." Call the Family Service Agency in your city.—HELEN

DEAR RAP: A reader asked why the "peace generation" goes for so much "violence-viewing" in films. Then she badmouths "A Clockwork Orange" without even seeing it. This Hugo Award classic of science-fiction depicts a future state that is entirely possible. The violence is Magnolias abound in the South, but none supposedly come close to the size of the mammoth magnolia tree in Washington in Hempstead County. The photos on this page show the tree in its entirety—and closeups of some of its components.

Beautify America!

it's Flag Day

June 14th is FLAG DAY . . . and what a wonderful occasion to Beautify America.

Old glory is the most beautiful flag in the world. It is the same flag that has carried us through periods of war and depression. The red, white and blue is the same symbol that GUARANTEES us our rights under our constitution . . . the same symbol that supports the Bill of Rights and the rights of the individual to seek his own destiny.

Our flag is a constant reminder of the price that we have paid for freedom and the prosperity that we all enjoy today.

The Stars and Stripes will "Beautify America". Do your part . . .

FOR CLEANER WATERS

NEW YORK (AP) — Contamination of recreational waters will be less with the use of new dock-mounted boat sanitary stations.

Almost all states have laws preventing the overboard dumping of sanitary wastes. This means the wastes must be collected and stored on board, until transfer to a disposal facility on shore.

To use the units newly designed by the consulting engineering firm of Pope, Evans and Robbins for the National Park Service, the pleasure boater need only dock at the station and connect a hose to a gunwale fitting on his boat. Waste is then transferred from the boat holding tank to the station holding tank by a station pump.

Then, contents of the station holding tank are either pumped to a sewage system or, in remote areas, otherwise transported to one.

SOVIET SEAPOWERS

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — A spokesman for the Chief of Naval Operations in a speech before a local club, said Soviet seapower is challenging the United States.

F. J. Allston of Naperville, Ill. said Russian advances in military and merchant marine fleets is setting a rapid pace. They own the largest submarine force in the history of the world—some 375 submarines. Allston, a public information specialist, said "More than 80 of them are nuclear powered."

Allston said that some of the Russian submarines are designed to operate under water for three and four month durations.

Sports figures pitch in to help injured youth

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Dan McCormack was a healthy high school athlete when a car hit him six months ago.

Now he's a quadriplegic, with no use of his arms and legs, a $20,000 medical bill and little hope of recovery.

The orphaned Beavercreek High School sophomore, 16, was walking along a highway en route to basketball practice when the accident happened.

Since then, McCormack's life has been hospitals, wheelchairs and therapy treatments.

His plight, however, hasn't gone unnoticed.

Former University of Kentucky basketball coach Adolph Rupp and hydroplane racing champion Dean Chenoweth lifted his spirits with hospital visits.

The Beavercreek Jaycees are easing the financial burden. They already have raised $1,200 through a spaghetti dinner. More funds are on the way from a Dan McCormack all-sports week that started Tuesday night.

Chenoweth, who won national unlimited hydroplane titles in 1970 and 1971 driving Miss Budweiser, has been most instrumental.

"I read about him in February," said Chenoweth, a Xenia, Ohio, car dealer. "No father, no mother, that age and paralyzed. Somebody had to help and pitch in."

He visited young McCormack two or three times weekly while he was in a Columbus hospital. Dan now is in a nearby Xenia rest home, continuing therapy.

"I talked the World Hydroplane Championship officials into naming one heat of their races (July 2 at Madison, Ind.) after the boy," said Chenoweth. "He'll be in Madison that day," the veteran driver assured. "But he told me if he went I had to win. How's that for pressure?"

Mark has lived the last four years with his sister, Mrs. Terrence Torzala can't get over Chenoweth's help.

"Isn't he great? They've become fast friends. He's really helped Mark's spirits," his sister said.

Palmer hurls Orioles into 3-0 victory

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just when the Baltimore bullpen corps was thinking about applying for unemployment compensation, who should come to their rescue but Jim Palmer, friend of the underworked relief pitcher.

"On the bench before the ninth inning, they were kidding me that I was the best eighth-inning pitcher in baseball," Palmer said after hurling the high-flying Orioles to a 3-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins Friday night with last-out help from Grant Jackson.

inning Friday night but then yielded a single to Jim Nettles and walked Eric Soderholm and Rick Dempsey, loading the bases.

When Rich Reese was announced as a pinch hitter for loser Jim Kaat, Baltimore manager Earl Weaver summoned Grant Jackson from the bullpen—"It has been a while, hasn't it?" Weaver said later—and he buzzed a third strike past Rick Renick, batting for Reese.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit kept pace with Baltimore atop the East Division by blanking California 3-0, Oakland shut out Cleveland 5-0 and Kansas City edged Milwaukee 3-2. The Chicago-Boston and Texas-New York games were rained out.

Baltimore staked Palmer to a 1-0 lead in the third inning when Bobby Grich doubled, took third on Paul Blair's single and scored on Don Baylor's foul sacrifice fly. In the eighth, Don Buford singled, Grich walked and Blair tripled for two more runs.

Meanwhile, Palmer wriggled out of deep trouble in the fourth. With runners on second and third and none out, he retired Harmon Killebrew on a grounder, fired a called third strike past Tony Oliva and got Nettles on a foul pop.

'Toy Cannon' goes off 2 times in tilt

Jimmy Wynn, Houston's Toy Cannon, went off twice Friday night. The first explosion cost him $100. The second one cost the Philadelphia Phillies a ball game.

Wynn, who carries the Toy Cannon nickname because of his size and his power, greeted reliever Dick Selma with a leadoff homer in the bottom of the 11th inning, giving the Astros a 1-0 decision over the Phillies.

Seven innings later, Wynn had picked up an automatic $100 fine for tossing his helmet in protest over a called third strike from Philadelphia starter Steve Carlton.

In other National League action Friday, New York nipped Cincinnati 2-1, Chicago shut out Los Angeles 4-0, Pittsburgh shaded San Diego 2-1, San Francisco downed St. Louis 6-1 and Montreal split a doubleheader with Atlanta, winning the opener 7-4 and dropping the nightcap 2-0.

Wynn raged at Umpire Bruce Froemming in the fourth inning after being called out on strikes. He dropped his bat across home plate and then tossed his helmet in anger as he strolled away from the umpire.

Carlton duelled on even terms first with Don Wilson and then with reliever Tom Griffin and the game remained scoreless after 10 innings. The Phillies' left-hander allowed just six hits and struck out 13 before leaving for a pinch hitter in the 11th.

Dick Selma came on at the start of the 11th and it took only four pitches for Wynn to end the ball game. His ninth homer landed in the left field stands and moved the Astros into second place tie with Los Angeles in the National League West, 2½ games behind Cincinnati.

The Mets snapped a seven-game Cincinnati winning streak for the second time in less than two weeks, pushing across a run in the ninth inning on Bud Harrelson's triple and a wild pitch by loser Gary Nolan.

After the triple, the Reds walked pinch hitter Tommie Agee, choosing to pitch instead to Willie Mays, whose seventh inning single had tied the score. But Mays never got the chance to be a hero because Harrelson scammed home on Nolan's wild pitch.

Steve Blass tossed a five-hitter and retired 16 San Diego batters in order, pitching the Pirates past the Padres and keeping Pittsburgh one-half game ahead of New York in the NL East.

Jim Hickman and Billy Williams cracked home runs and Burt Hooton fired a six-hitter as Chicago blanked Los Angeles.

Jay Silvester tries, tries, tries again for Olympic Gold Medal

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

PROVO, Utah (NEA)—Jay Silvester was still physically stiff from three hours of flogging the weights, stretching, bending, hauling his bulk through the perspiring grime of a long workout.

It's part of Jay's daily regimen.

He is 34 years old, married, with three young children. And every day he's in the shorts and T-shirt of the sweating athlete, exerting himself in the company of kids more than a decade younger.

He's in just as good shape as they are. A solid 6-2½ filled out to 250 pounds. And he's more motivated.

Jay wants to throw the discus in the 1972 Summer Olympic Games in Munich. He has competed twice before in the games, at Tokyo in 1964 and Mexico City in 1968. The best he has accomplished was a fourth place in Tokyo.

"It's the monkey on my back, to win a gold medal," he says now earnestly over a cut of New York steak. From his seat in the hilltop restaurant he can see out on the beautiful white-topped Wasatch range of mountains overlooking the spic-and-span Brigham Young University campus, where Jay teaches physiology in the physical education department.

This is Jay's country, where he can take his pickup truck out into the wilderness to hunt ducks. He is comfortable here, though he has been all over the world as a discus thrower. He is also a conscientious elder in the Mormon church.

But Jay's mind these days is primarily on southern Bavaria in late August because he knows that, at his age, he may never get another chance at the coveted gold medal.

"In track and field," he says, "that's it for any man who competes. I don't care who they are. They're nothing until they've won the Olympics. And I've been an international competitor since 1961 and a year later I broke the world record."

Jay Silvester

He's conscious of the fact that in the old days around Mt. Olympus, the Greek who flung the discus the farthest was regarded as the epitome of the greatest athlete. Myron's "Discobolus" depicts the classic discus thrower in stone. Jay, a pragmatic modernist in form, is nevertheless proud of the connection. So one turn in the ring, a grunt and a mighty heave—that has been the ritual dominating his life.

"For the last four years," he says, "I haven't been out of training for more than two weeks. I do it because I love it, and because I have this goal."

even the thought of professionalism is a crime worse than a padded expense account. So Jay is sweating out an appeal by the U.S. Olympic Committee to the International Amateur Athletic Federation to determine his status. In the same boat are three other American world class performers who signed the old worthless contracts—400 meters champion Lee Evans, silver medalist shot-putter George Woods and steeplechaser George Young.

If Jay does get the special dispensation and returns to Europe late this summer, he'll not have the specter of Al Oerter shrouding his ambitions.

Oerter, a track marvel, won the gold medal for the discus in each of the last four Olympics but does not plan to compete again. Silvester won't concede that Al was a better man—except in the Olympics.

"In two of them," he relates, "he was lucky." On a hot, listless day in Tokyo, a perfect 45-degree wind whipped up just as Oerter stepped into the ring for his fifth, and winning, throw.

"In Mexico," admits Jay, "he just flat whipped the world."

Jay's own ventures were plagued. At Tokyo, walking through a stadium tunnel ("built for Japs"), he struck his head on an overhang 10 minutes before the qualifying throws, sustaining a cut which required several stitches. He finished fourth.

"Mexico," he says with a frown, "was a disaster. It was raining the day of the competition and got so slippery they had to put a net around the discus area so nobody would get killed. Finally they delayed it and we went into a room to lie down." He says he "freaked out" psychologically during the pause and finished fifth.

So now it's four years later and he wants to regenerate the quest for a gold medal. It would make the aches and stiffness every night worth the effort.

Shoemaker is excited about today's race

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Bill Shoemaker, who has ridden more winners than any jockey in history and rarely shows emotion, says the richest match race in American turf history has him "a little excited."

Owners Fletcher Jones of Typecast and Leonard Lavin of Convenience want to find out which is the better horse, so they've put up $100,000 each for a 1-1½ mile showdown Saturday at Hollywood Park. Another $50,000 was added by Hollywood Turf Club, making it a $250,000 winner-take-all race.

The 40-year-old Shoemaker, who has won purses amounting to more than $47 million in his 23 years of riding, pilots Typecast, Jerry Lambert, 31, will be aboard Convenience.

Each of the gals must carry 120 pounds.

"It's something different, something that doesn't happen all the time," explains Shoemaker of his feeling. He has
